Languages and Cultures of the Mediterranean - For thousands of years the Mediterranean Sea has been a place where important civilizations meet, where cultures and languages intermingle and compete. This course is an introduction to the social and cultural history of languages spoken around the Mediterranean, a substantive program of study that provides a detailed contemporary and historical survey of over a dozen languages and many dialects, and their communities of speakers. Instructor: Eda Derhemi No pre-requisite, non-repeatable

Challenges Facing Euro Union
Restricted to Undergrad - Urbana-Champaign.
Meets 17-Oct-16 - 07-Dec-16.
Contemporary Challenges facing the European Union. This course explores topics of contemporary importance to the European Union. These topics are methodically examined through theoretical, historical, national, supranational, and international frames. One topic will be explored each semester this course is offered, and this topic will rotate at the instructor's discretion. Sample topics include immigration, aging populations, the digital single market, energy unions, climate change, Euroscepticism, and more. The class will conclude with a capstone project involving an institutional simulation of a key European Union institution. This simulation will allow students to experience how such problems get solved in real life. No pre-requisites, repeatable only for different topics.

EURO 376  Children and Youth Literature  credit: 3 hours.
Same as CWL 376, GWS 376, and SCAN 376. See SCAN 376.
